Hi All,

I was going through the document again and noticed an inconsistency that I wanted to point out. Rather than resend the entire document, please see below for the corrected edit. Again, if you have any questions, just let me know.

6. Other schools are successfully getting students through at the CID minimum

- Physiology courses with a CID minimum may have prerequisites as discussed in ~~XI~~ above XI above
- Microbiology does not have CID minimums but most schools that have lowered Microbiology units have added a 1-2 unit "survey" course to ensure success.
- Microbiology success rates are lower for minimum CID courses as discussed in XII above.

Be Well,
Chris

Hi All,

Please see the attached science unit justification document which contains our department's key points and data for keeping Microbiology and Physiology as 5-unit courses. If you have any questions before next week's curriculum meeting just let me know.

Be Well
Chris

I have reached out to the science faculty for their updated documentation and will email it out to the committee as soon as I receive it. I have asked to have this by the beginning of next week so that the committee will have plenty of time to review it. If you have any questions in the meantime please let me know.

I know we were supposed to get copies of evidence from the Natural Science division that was presented at the previous meeting and I believe they were preparing additional research for this meeting. Do we have any of that material to review?

James
